30.11.2023 1/2. Went running and suddenly woke up from the trance of the snow crunching under my sneakers to this plate swarm. Completely unexpected occurrence for it was snowing at the same time (ice fog and snowfall don't go well together).

Where it came from? Guns don't seem to be on and anyway would not likely make this far away (~5 km) such a localized small swarm. Must have been some plume that lowered to the ground here, in the daytime I had seen the Teollisuuskylä plume going down. That's pretty much the only explanation. We might entertain also the explanation someone having used snow blower just a bit earlier in the area, but I don't think it likely given the overcast sky, the cloud base too high, not hugging the ground.

30.11.2023 2/2. So parhelic circle was clear, but it seems like I missed even clearer 120° parhelion. It there, right?

Temp at railway station -8 C, Apukka -11 C. Just the right numbers for good plate.
