26/27 Jan 2026, Rovaniemi. Another windscreen elliptical halo! This time I didn't see it when I first went to check the situation. Only the poorly defined colored arc below the light (Parry?) and was having an internal dialogue whether it is worth documenting.

Came back with phone and Canon, placed the floody headlamp on top of the seat backrest, and then, from the Canon live view, noticed the ellipse. Two ellipses actually, far apart from each other.

These must be common – we just haven't had the eye to see. But this one, unlike the earlier ellipse, was hard to make out with the naked eye even when I knew it was there.

And oh, the season continues after all. Juujärvi racing has started making snow near Sierijärvi.

26/27 Jan 2026, Rovaniemi. Next I moved the car from the parking slot to a darker corner of the lot. Placed Javelot Turbo on tripod far from the car. I see only one ellipse here.

26/27 Jan 2026, Rovaniemi. Reflection view. Can't quite distinguish any Bottlinger. I looked all around – no helic arc of any kind.

26/27 Jan 2026, Rovaniemi. Just started looking at the phone videos. There is indeed a faint Bottlinger. Javelot Turbo at distance.

26/27 Jan 2026, Rovaniemi. Same as above, but from inside the car, showing an elliptical halo.

26/27 Jan 2026, Rovaniemi. Headlamp inside the car. Two ellipses and one colored arc, possibly Parry.

When I scraped the frost off, it was of the tightly stuck type. Would have been impossible scrape off a sample, crystals would have been destroyed. Should inspect them in place, maybe should try one of those microscopes that you clip on phone.
